credit would be about the same as the credit recorded in 1969.

Mr. Henderson said that the year was one of continued growth for Transcontinental. Approximately $152.8 million was spent during 1969 for expansion and other construction. New high marks were recorded for gas deliveries and for operating revenues, which increased to $361,233,463 from $328,840,352 in the previous year.

Daily allocated capacity of the pipeline system (exclusive of storage capacity) was increased 11% to 2,871 million cubic feet per day. Total peak day allocated capacity at year - end, including storage allocations, was 4,046 million cubic feet per day.

Further expansion is planned in 1970, part of which has been authorized by the Federal Power Commission and part of which will be covered by an application soon to be filed with the Commission.

There are approximately 32 stations located between Texas and New York. Transco Station, 170, located in Appomattox employs 23 people at the plant and seven in a pipeline crew.

The Pastor Speaks

SUFFICIENT GRACE

II Cor. 12:9

"And He said unto me, my Grace is sufficient for thee."

We notice the present tense into which the Spirit of God has cast this text, "My grace is sufficient." Someone has said, "There is no grace for tomorrow." It can not be stored up in some Holy treasury of the soul, it must be appropriated moment by moment. But, praise God, it is always sufficient and His supply never diminishes. The Devil would deceive us into trying to bear tomorrows burdens with only todays grace. But it can not be done. However, when tomorrow does come the grace of God will be ample for the difficulty that we will have to face.

It is of interest to notice the original word "sufficient". In our text it literally means "placed underneath and so able to get down, not up, in order to reach it. Therefore, when trials come, until we get low enough to reach the place of true blessing "the everlasting arms" are never "underneath." (Deut. 33: 27). It is not if you have a moments grace, but rather grace for every moment. It's not merely the grace to endure the trial, but it's grace that brings our strength and keeps it equal to the trial. We as needy creatures have all of God's grace at our disposal. His grace saves us (Eph. 2:8), His grace sustains us (II Cor. 12:9) and His grace equips us to serve Him. His grace is sufficient for every need. Are you pressed down today with heavy burdens? Does the load that you are called to carry seem to be too heavy? The Lord says "my grace is sufficient for thee." It is certainly true that the darker the night, the better the light shines. It is equally true that the greater the problem or trial the greater the grace of God is.

"One day at a time,
And the day is His day,
He hath numbered the hours,
The they hast or delay.

His grace is sufficient,
We walk not alone,
As the day so the strength,
That He giveth His own."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE WRONG KIND

Lesson for February 8, 1970

Background Scripture: Nehemiah 1:5-11; Hosea 14; Matthew 18: 23-35; Luke 7:36-50
Devotional Reading: Psalms 103: 1-13

A certain young minister was fired by his congregation for what was termed "conduct unbecoming a minister of the Gospel." The disputed "conduct" was the minister's visits to a local American Legion Post, Disturbed because he had no contact with the people who patronized the Post, he decided to go there every Friday evening for supper. Perhaps he could meet and talk to some of these people that never "darkened the doors of the church."

The first Friday evening when he entered the Post, a hush fell over the people in the room when he appeared at the doorway. Although these people did not attend his church for any, for that matter), they did know who he was and were astonished to see him there. They could hardly believe their eyes. No clergyman had ever before set foot in the Post. It was the one organization in town that had a bar and hardly a place where one would expect to find a pastor.

Not Our Kind

Nodding to several of the people as he passed them, he sat down at a table and scanned the menu. In time, a waitress came to his table and he placed his order: a hot roast beef sandwich and a cup of coffee.

That first evening the people in the Post regarded him as an oddity and politely avoided him and his table. In the ensuing weeks, however, they grew more friendly and several people eventually sat down at his table and talked with him at some length.

At first they talked about many things in general: the new school tax, the high school football team, war, peace, Viet Nam, etc. Gradually, however, their conversations became more personal and several asked him his advice and counsel. One man confessed to him that he had once been a very active church member but had "gotten away from it" and found it difficult to get started again.

That Kind Of People

After several months of his weekly visit for a sandwich and coffee, several people he met at the post began to come to his church. Some of the congregation welcomed the newcomers, but others gave them a chilly reception. Finally, a delegation of irate parishioners came to the pastor and complained that "these new people are just not our kind!" Either the minister should indicate to the newcomers that they would be more welcome somewhere else or they would ask for his resignation. He had brought great disgrace upon the church with his visits to the post, they said.

The young minister refused to do as they demanded and the struggle began. The irate faction began a campaign to garner sufficient support to force him out. At last, they were successful. "A man of God," they said, "wouldn't associate with THAT kind of people in THAT kind of place."

What Would Jesus Do?

What do you think? Was the pastor wrong in associating with these people? Was he wrong in going where they were instead of waiting for them to come to him? What would Jesus have done?

Actually, we do not have to speculate as to what Jesus would have done, for the New Testament tells us plainly what he did do. He not only told parables about seeking the lost, about the physician coming to heal the sick, instead of the well, he himself went to them and sought them. He associated with the "wrong kind of people" and too often was found in the "wrong kind of place." He was condemned for associating with harlots, tax collectors and other moral "untouchables." He was denounced for going to their homes and sharing their hospitality.

What would we say to him today? More important, what would he say to us?
